Although not always
perceivable,
it is there
just the same.
From
the first encounter
of new friends
to the last
parting good-by
it draws us
closer
to Him.

Through it
we become
accustomed
to new people
and new ideas,
making it easier
to adjust to
a new way
of life.

It is
magnified
by those who
help us
help ourselves,
thereby allowing us to
discover it.

It is there
as the ground
is awakened
by the call of
new life
in an old world
already filled with
archaic idealism and
rigid conformity.
Sometimes it is
best exemplified
by one person who
shows concern
for another.

Although often
hard to find,
it has begun to grow
in the freshmen
who find it
hard
to adjust to
college tradition.

Beginning as a
friendly fellowship,
it snowballs into
lasting relationships
which will
never be forgotten,
even after
college days are
over.

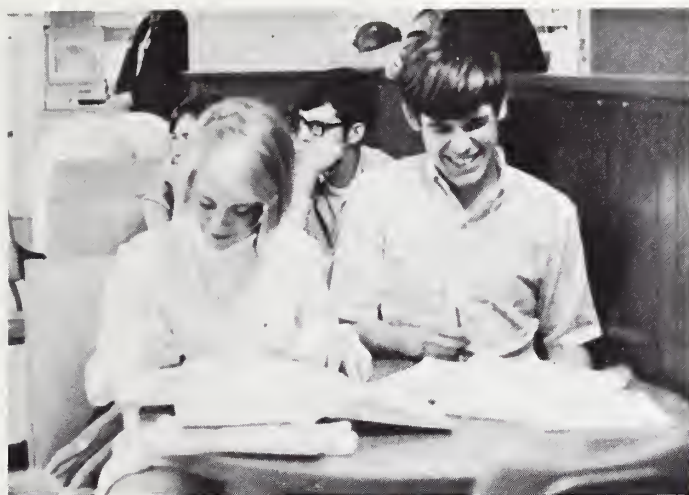

Just when it
seems to be
slipping away
through
cruel gestures and
words,
it reappears in a
fresh form of
communicative spirit.

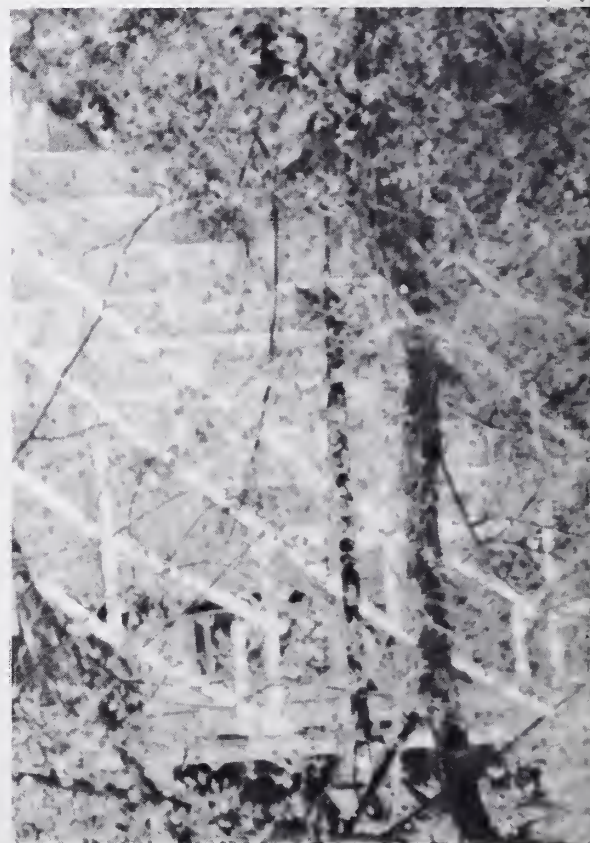

A simple faith,
a helping hand,
and a
sympathetic heart
are
the results of its
influence
on all,

for
none
can escape it.
Through it comes
the molding of
independent spirits
into
one being,
searching
for a deeper meaning to
education,
spirituality, and
life
in its entirety. This
complete harmony
is achieved
because

Combining efficient leadership with a warm, amiable personality, Dr. Amos Barton helped Judson College from its very beginning. As one of its founders, he strove to provide a Christian liberal arts college for dedicated men and women with an effective, inspired faculty; and every year Judson College moves closer to this ultimate goal. Under his direct guidance since 1967, the school has grown from a small, obscure private college into a thriving progressive institution; a new dormitory, new offices, new instructors, and a new curriculum have been added to the college's already bustling campus, and his influence on future expansion is immeasurable. Already well known and admired for his keen business sense, he brought to the school sound ideas and new policies designed to mold Judson into an integral, flexible institution of education. Those who know Dr. Barton know Judson College, for he is Judson. He has always supported its principles, whether cheering from the sidelines of a sports event or discussing school policies at a trustee meeting. Only his physical presence will be gone, for his ideas, hopes, and Christian example will linger to be enjoyed and admired by all who remain.

Beautiful Kathy Keller and handsome Ted Shank were chosen by the students to reign as 1969 Homecoming Queen and King.

Skill was displayed as well as beauty that day for the Judson Eagles captured their first homecoming victory, defeating George Williams 2-1.

Although the day began gloomily, buoyant enthusiasm spread through the crowd of students as they participated in the day's activities, which were finalized by the "Fly Me to the Moon" banquet, Saturday evening.

Tell It Like It Is

Lively music and swinging choreography was amply portrayed in the Judson Choir as it presented the new Christian musical "Tell it Like It Is." The choir traveled to many churches in Illinois with its message of challenge and good news.

A unique experience for approximately 40 choir members was the good will tour to Haiti and Puerto Rico during the spring break, where they found that friendship and God's love surpasses all barriers of language and culture.

THE LAMPLIGHTER, Judson's campus newspaper is printed bi-weekly. Produced solely by the students, it gives an opportunity for those with journalistic talents and interests to put them to use. Since it is distributed to the entire campus community, it is an effective means of keeping up on all school activities. Even more important, through this newspaper students can voice their opinions on any subject which they think would be of interest to others on campus. Since the faculty and administration can also express opinion through the newspaper, it is an important link tying the campus community together.

Each year the yearbook staff strives to produce a book which is better than the one before. This year's staff was no exception. Under the leadership of Editor Diane McRoberts the work was planned, trying to correct the weaknesses of previous yearbooks. Many staff members contributed knowledge they had gained working on high school yearbooks. Although some members had had no previous experience, their enthusiasm and hard work contributed to the production of the book. The staff hopes that the book they have compiled will bring back memories for many years to come of the 1969-70 school year at Judson.

The jumping Junior Varsity cheerleaders backed the JV basketball team in its efforts throughout a busy season. Cheering at all the home games and at many away from Judson, the squad worked together to present its cheers with overwhelming Judson enthusiasm.

The vivacious Varsity squad supported our Eagles by rooting at every soccer and basketball game this year. Under the leadership of veteran Maureen Wright, the girls presented many new and different cheers as part of their efforts to urge the team to victory.

This has been a busy and exciting year for the Judson College choir under the direction of Professor Ed Thompson. During the spring break forty members of the choir, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Thompson and Dr. and Mrs. Didier, toured Puerto Rico and Haiti. Besides singing many concerts in the churches of Puerto Rico and Haiti, they also included sightseeing and visits to the American Baptist missionaries there. In order to raise funds for the trip, the choir traveled to many churches in northern Illinois and gave Sunday evening concerts. In addition to the usual classical sacred music, the choir repertoire was extended to include the gospel folk musical "Tell It Like It Is". Concerts including such a wide variety of music brought the choir success with audiences wherever they appeared. Helping Mr. Ed with the business of the choir this year were the following officers: Dan McCoy, President; Ruth Platz, Vice President; Sue Elson, Secretary; Roger Hazel, Business Manager; and Becky Walton, Librarian.
